Important Information

- Foundation Global Income and Growth Fund (the "Fund") primarily invests in global equities and debt securities.
- The Fund focuses its investments in equity, debt securities, which involve certain risks associated with emerging markets such as greater political, tax, economic, liquidity and regulatory risks. The Fund may invest lower investment grade or non-investment grade investments which may subject to high risks, such as volatility, loss of principal and interest, creditworthiness and downgrading, default, interest rate, general market, and liquidity risks.
- The Fund's net derivative exposure may be up to 50%.
- Debt securities in emerging markets may involve certain risks not typically associated with investment in more developed markets, such as greater political, tax, economic, liquidity and regulatory risks. This investment may involve risks that could result in loss of part or entire amount of investors' investment.
- Dividend payment in respect of Distribution Classes may, at the sole discretion of the Investment Manager, be made out of the Fund's capital or effectively out of the Fund's capital which represents a return or withdrawal of part of the amount investors originally invested and/or capital gains attributable to the original investment. This may result in an immediate decrease in the NAV per share and the capital of the Fund available for investment in the future and capital growth may be reduced.
- In making investment decisions, investors should not rely solely on this material. Please read the explanatory memorandum for details and risk factors.

Fund Manager's Report⁴

The fund fell by 0.7% in March 2025. Since its inception in 2020, the Fund has gained 27.5%. The Fund's flexible positioning of different asset classes continues to capture valuable opportunities, offering better downside protection, income distribution, and long-term capital growth.

On the fixed income side, the Bloomberg Barclays US Treasury Index rose by 0.2%. The Global IG Bond Index increased by 0.6%, while the Global High Yield Index fell by 0.3%. The bond market continued to maintain growth this month.

The market saw a significant decline this month, with the Nasdaq Index dropping by 8.2% and the S&P 500 falling by 5.7%. Technology was the hardest-hit sector, but other sectors also performed poorly. The fund was able to capitalize on its flexible allocation strategy, increasing its investments in the fixed income space, achieved relatively stable return. The Fund continues to favour quality diversified multinational businesses with pricing power and deep moats.

In March, the U.S. ISM PMI was 49, showing a month-on-month decline and performing below expectations. Our Fund's flexible position control, exposure to different asset classes and value-investing strategy should reduce short-term volatility and let investors focus on what our 'Foundation Model' can deliver over medium/long-term returns.

Investors should not solely rely above information to make any investment decisions.

Important Note

Investment involves risks. Past performance is not indicative of future performance. Investors should read the explanatory memorandum for details, including the risk factors and product features. This material has not been reviewed by the Securities and Futures Commission and is issued by Foundation Asset Management (HK) Limited. All data is as of the date of this document and sourced from Foundation unless otherwise stated. Investors should seek independent advice from a financial adviser before making any investments. Portfolio weightings and allocations are subject to change. The weightings for each breakdown are rounded to the nearest tenth or hundredth of a percent; therefore, the aggregate weights for each breakdown may not equal 100%. *The formula for calculating the annualized yield of a fund is as follows: (Dividend amount / Net Asset Value (NAV) as of ex-dividend date) x 12. This formula is based on the dividend distribution over the last 12 months. It is important to note that yield figures provided are only estimates and are for reference purposes only. They do not represent the actual performance of the fund and there is no guarantee as to the frequency or amount of dividend payments.
